AJ is on point for EOC today. I've provided the resources that I know to Karissa for messaging and will reach out to Christina to get a sense of businesses impacted by gas.

Team: Attached is a list of Capitol Hill businesses and their contact info shared by GSBA. Given that the crowd is now "stationed" at 11th & Pine indefinitely (did you hear about the new CHAZ?) I think we will see a surge of concerns and requests by impacted businesses. If possible can I get a summary number of Cap Hill businesses who have asked for services (broken glass clean up, graffiti, boarding, etc.) versus number of businesses we served since the protest at Cap Hill? I am sure many will ask for this information soon, including the media and the Mayor's office.

Michael/Karissa/Scott are currently working with GSBA and Broadway BIA to develop messaging for the businesses about ongoing business corridor impact and possible services. They will also provide outreach over the phone. (The Mayor's office would also like to know how many businesses got exposed by tear gas and similar chemicals.) For folks at EOC, please provide feedback to Michael/Scott/Karissa if you are hearing feedback.

Many thanks. I'll be out at Cap Hill today.

City of Seattle describes what it's doing to keep Capitol Hill protest area clean and safe

The city of Seattle issued a statement Tuesday describing the work different departments have done to "create (a) safe place for peaceful demonstrations." The statement called the Monday decision to take down the barricades outside the Police Department's East Precinct "an important step in the (city's) efforts to lead with de-escalation and rebuild community trust."

As of Tuesday, the statement said, the Seattle Fire Department (SFD) "has and may continue to upstaff resources near the area to ensure crews are appropriately equipped to respond to fires and medical emergencies when it's safe to do so."

Several city departments have attempted to improve access to the area near the East Precinct in case an emergency arises, the statement said. SFD has also shared information on arson awareness and steps that businesses and residences in the area can take to prevent or protect against bonfires, dumpster fires or structure fires.

The Seattle Department of Transportation (SDOT) is also working to keep the area safe and clean, according to the statement.

SDOT "is picking up debris and trash, has cleaned graffiti that displayed hate, racist, and vulgar language or concepts, and has arranged for garbage cans and portable toilets to be placed in the vicinity for use by demonstrators," the statement said.

The department has also closed streets from 10th to 13th avenues on Pine Street and on 11th Avenue between Olive and Pike streets.

Seattle Public Utilities (SPU) has cleaned or removed about 50 large commercial trash containers or carts from the area in the last 24 hours to help support firefighters and prevent fires, the statement continued. SPU also continues to pick up trash for businesses and protesters.

Seattle Parks and Recreation (SPR) is helping clean up garbage and debris, weed and trim trees, repair damaged garden beds, remove graffiti and fix damaged fencing and bathrooms, according to the statement.

"In addition to SPR facilities, there are currently at least 12 portable toilets in the vicinity," the statement said.

The city has hired an artist to create a mural at Cal Anderson Park, and lights in the park will remain on until 4 a.m. to keep the area well-lit, the statement added.

EOC Response Colleagues,

The Seattle EOC is transitioning to a new operational schedule as of TOMORROW, Tuesday, June 9. We will focus our EOC time on the busier hours of the activities we have seen over the last several days. We will open the EOC at 4PM and go to roughly 10PM. - Those working in morning will now be ON CALL and should not report to the EOC.
- Those working in the evening should now report to the EOC at 4PM.

If you cannot access the SharePoint document, email your department staffing plans to seattle-eoc@seattle.gov as soon as possible. We need your staffing POCs for on-call and in person EOC presence from Tuesday thru Sunday, June 14.
